ORDER OF DISMISSAL

To the best the Court can discern, Plaintiff has concerns about the statute of limitations and potential consequences of res judicata.<sup>5</sup> It appears Plaintiff is asking the Court to stay his civil cases pending the outcome of his criminal trial, so he may file amended complaints in the future.<sup>6</sup> He also appears to question the effect of the previous dismissal with prejudice in Hampton v. Scoble, Case No. 3:23-cv-00258.<sup>7</sup>

The motion contains citations and legal jargon that is inapplicable in federal court. Specifically, the State of Alaska's Rules of Civil Procedure do not apply to cases filed in federal court. Rather, parties must review and comply with the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, the Local Civil Rules, and all Court orders.<sup>8</sup> Additionally, a "stipulation" is a voluntary agreement between opposing parties.<sup>9</sup> Further, "stays should not be indefinite in nature" and "should not be granted" unless it appears likely the other proceedings will be concluded within a reasonable time."<sup>10</sup> The Court does not find a stay to be appropriate in these cases. Therefore, the motion is DENIED in each of the four cases; the Court will not stay these civil cases. However, the Court will address Plaintiff's concerns regarding his ability to file future cases.

In the four above-captioned civil cases, the Court informed Plaintiff that it intended to dismiss each action because: (1) Plaintiff named defendants who are immune from suit, (2) Plaintiff may not bring claims under the Eighth Amendment as a pretrial detainee; and (3) Plaintiff's remaining claims require a favorable termination of the underlying criminal case against him.<sup>11</sup>

If an allegedly unlawful search and seizure resulted in criminal charges based on the evidence seized, a plaintiff is barred from bringing such claims until he is able to show his prosecution was terminated in his favor. <sup>12</sup> Similarly, a claim for malicious prosecution is not cognizable until the resulting criminal charges have been dismissed or the conviction or sentence has been reversed on direct appeal, expunged by executive order, declared invalid by a state tribunal authorized to make such determination, or called into question by a federal court's issuance of a writ of habeas corpus, 28 U.S.C. § 2254.<sup>13</sup> Until such time, a litigant may not pursue his claims in a federal civil rights action. Because these claims require "termination of the ... proceeding in favor of the accused[,]" the statute of limitations does not begin to run until that favorable termination takes place.<sup>14</sup> Therefore, Plaintiff's claims challenging the legality of the search and seizure that led to his current criminal charges and claims malicious prosecution are DISMISSED without prejudice.

However, in any future case, Plaintiff must not include any claims or defendants for which Plaintiff lacks a sufficient legal or factual basis. Specifically, Hampton v. Scoble, Case No. 3:23-cv-00258 was dismissed with prejudice because a plaintiff cannot maintain a suit against a magistrate judge based on actions performed by the judge in his judicial capacity.<sup>15</sup> Therefore, Plaintiff may
